Musings from the Pastor

It was the second time she was surprised that day. The stranger who Mary thought was the gardener, was actually the Christ who was standing in front of her; present with her in what she was dealing with right now. "Why are you weeping?" He asked, "Who are you looking for?" And then, as if to say "don't you see, I'm right here in front of you," he spoke her name. He knew her, not in some general, distant, "Jesus knows everything" kind of way but in specific, in particular, as a person, loved deeply and called by name.

In her book titled An Altar in the World (Harper One Press. 2009 p. 103), Barbara Brown Taylor tells the story of when she first came to faith while she was in college. "People I barely knew made a habit of telling me they loved me." She said. "They were Christians too, and I guess it was their way of welcoming me to the family. I didn't mind exactly, but since they barely knew me I wasn't sure what they were talking about. Did they love the way my right foot turned out, so that I left tracks like a penguin on the beach? Did they love the way my upper lip disappeared when I laughed? Or did they only love my willingness to make hand-printed signs for Bible Study? I decided to find out, so the next time one of the Christians said she loved me, I asked her why. She made a surprised face, like I should already know: 'Because God loves you!' she said... 'because God loves everybody!'"

And that's good news! God does love everybody. If that was the only thing made known by the resurrection accounts in the gospels; that would be enough to celebrate. But especially in John's gospel it's made abundantly clear that God not only loves all of us, but that God also cares about each of us, specifically; not just in the abstract but also concretely, not just generally but also particularly. If you keep reading John's gospel, the resurrected Christ appears to the disciples in the upper room, and then a week later he comes back because Thomas missed it the first time. The resurrected Christ appeared on the lakeshore to discouraged fishermen who had been at work all night without catching anything and he showed them where to cast their nets to catch a ton of fish. Then he also pulled Peter aside in order to give him three opportunities to declare his love and commitment, once for each time Peter had denied Jesus just a few days earlier.

The specificity of the way Peter, Thomas and Mary encountered the risen Christ shows us how God relates with God's people. If your foot leaves tracks like a penguin, not only does God know that, God loves that about you. If your hair does that wild thing that drives you crazy, God knows it and God loves that about you too. But more importantly, if you've been through pain that's unimaginable, God's been there with you. If you've been through joy that's indescribable, God's been there with you too. Whatever you've gone through and whatever you're going through - whether you know it or even if you don't - God is right there with you and God cares immensely about what's going on.

Mary went to the tomb expecting to find Jesus' lifeless body, but when he spoke her name she realized that she had encountered the living Christ. All of the stuff we do to celebrate Easter - bunnies, eggs, candy, flowers, meals, songs, and even the worship services - none of it really amounts to much unless we are also looking for how we encounter the living Christ. Whether it happens in the face of a stranger who listens to our story or a friend who stands by us in a time of need, whether it happens as we take food to people who are hungry or welcome someone new into community. I can't tell you exactly where Christ will show up: but I can tell you that he will. You see, part of what it means to say "Christ is risen" is to say that He's alive and active in the world, and also in my life specifically. It seems everyone outside the doors of the church has moved on from last week's holiday, but for people of faith, encountering the risen Christ is central to who we are and what we do.

When Mary went back to the disciples, even though they didn't believe it yet, she had good news to share. And I wonder - a little over a week removed from our celebration of the resurrection - I wonder how you've encountered the risen Christ, and what good news you have to share because of it?

If you'd like to share your story, I'd like to hear it! Please get in touch and we'll set up a time.

Blessings on this Easter season,

Pastor Dan

Get to Know Elder Louise Cheney

I am entering my second year on Session, following a decades-long membership at MVPC.

Perhaps a look at my past experiences explains where I am now. My past experience as a mental health counselor for abused, disturbed, deprived children--many in foster care, would not seem a likely preparation for a church officer. Nevertheless, they were formative years wherein I had to re-think my 1950’s reward-based Christianity. Those years caused me to think, feel, search, and question until I had a reformed faith that encompassed every kind of pain. The hard work of discovery brought me to a very different, deeper understanding of God.

I value my time spent with others on Session where we search our faith to make decisions. I am grateful beyond words for our faith community at MVPC and willing to express that through my time with Godly Play, Glorify, and Women’s Fellowship.

From Friendship House Newsletter the following article:

The Hunger to Hope (H2H) program at Friendship House is in the coffee business as our food service apprentices learn the basics of roasting green coffee beans and challenges of packaging for sale.

Friendship House has been roasting & selling coffee since 2016. This has enabled the H2H apprentices to learn the basics of coffee roasting, blending, grinding and packaging fresh roasted coffee beans.

Kitchen Manager and H2H Instructor Tom Hoffman said this has allowed us to teach a new specialty plus our apprentices are able to add a new skill to their resume as they prepare for employment in the food service industry.

Tom says the coffee is offered in a dark or "French" roast as well as a medium roast for those looking for a milder experience. Friendship House organic coffee will be available for sale this spring and summer at the Mount Vernon Farmer's Market on the Riverwalk every other Saturday during the summer and at the Sedro-Woolley Farmer's Market every other Wednesday. The one-pound bags (either whole bean or ground) will be available for $12.11 per bag tax included.

You can visit the Friendship House website for the specific dates Friendship House coffee will be available. Skagitfriendshiphouse.org

For more information contact Jerry@skagitfriendshiphouse.org or 360-873-8022

The Friendship House Café continues to prepare and deliver a sack lunch to anyone who is hungry at the off-site distribution point every day. Café Kitchen Manager Tom Hoffman organizes the lunch preparation which includes a meat & cheese sandwich, a big of chips, a piece of fruit when available plus a cookie or pastry for dessert along with a bottle of water. A total of 375 sack lunches were distributed by volunteers in February.

Prayer

Would You like to join a prayer group?

We have a small but dedicated group that meets to pray every Tuesday morning from 10:00 to 11:00 a.m. in the Library. You are always welcome to come pray with us. There is no right or wrong way to pray, so don't feel intimidated. You don't have to come every week—come when your schedule permits. Centering Prayer, a form of contemplative prayer, is held on Tuesday mornings at 9:30 in Pastor Dan's office.

Would you like prayers, for you or someone you know?

Email prayers.mvpc@gmail.com and you will be prayed for during this time as well as throughout the week. You can also write your prayer request on the Friendship Register on Sunday mornings and they will be forwarded to the Prayer Team.

Talk to Pat Papadopoulos if you have any questions about the Prayer Team, or just about praying in general.
